Originally built in 1903 the (Wagga Wagga Courthouse) is an architectural landmark. Architects, Tanner Kibble Denton were faced with the task of respecting the texturally rich building which comprised of brick and metal, while adding new facilities to the court house.

The architects designed vertical panel cladding to complement the style of the original building, while also providing a modern day court house. The GDK Group was an ideal choice to coat the panels as they are a multi-disciplined manufacturer of acoustic panelling, timber wall and ceiling panels and customised design finishes.

Using Mirotone's MIROBILD AC 3606 Clear Topcoat in a satin finish, GDK was able to create a finish that not only compliments the character of the new courthouse, but pays homage to the original federation building.
